

Build Stronger Relationships with Your Customers

FACT SHEET

Share:

When it comes to communicating with customers, every touch point matters. HP® Exstream software is designed to make those communications fast, easy and convenient. When combined with DocuSign, these communications become better and faster end-to-end through the signature process of any document or contract and beyond.

Because Customers Matter

The power of HP Exstream to improve the experience for customers is extensive: from fully customized high-volume statements and bills, to on-demand marketing and self-service web applications for enrollment and account sign-up, to personalized correspondence and proposals produced interactively by customer-facing employees.

DocuSign Enhances HP Exstream at the Critical Point

When a document requires a signature, DocuSign delivers a consistently better experience. DocuSign is the global standard for electronic signature, empowering businesses to complete transactions quickly and securely online while improving compliance and dramatically reducing processing costs.

With millions of unique signers processing millions of transactions per year, DocuSign is trusted by more people, more companies, more times than any other electronic signature vendor in the world.

Better Together

HP Exstream and DocuSign can be used together to give you the power of a world-class customer communications platform with the ability to streamline and enhance every aspect of the customer experience. Today, the last step in executing contracts and customer agreements is a cumbersome, manual process.

With DocuSign, HP Exstream customers can fully automate the process of getting signatures for contracts and other customer agreements. Using DocuSign and HP Exstream, you can accelerate processing, increase regulatory compliance, and significantly reduce costs. More importantly, you can strengthen your relationships with customers.

Benefits

- Reduce process cycle times
- Accelerate revenue
- Simplify regulatory compliance
- Improve customer service
- Streamline account opening process
- Reduce costs
- Automate manual processes

eSignature Legally Binding

In 2000, the U.S. Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce (ESIGN) Act established electronic records and signatures as legally binding, having the same legal effect as traditional paper documents and handwritten signatures. But not all eSignature solutions are created equal.
